Our Mission

The HEATH Resource Center is an online clearinghouse on postsecondary education for individuals with disabilities. Since 2000, the HEATH Resource Center has served as a national clearinghouse on postsecondary education for individuals with disabilities, managed by The George Washington University Graduate School of Education and Human Resources. Now, The HSC Foundation has partnered with The George Washington University to expand the content of this resource and to designate it as the official resource site of The HSC Foundation’s National Youth Transitions Center.

The Clearinghouse gathers, develops and disseminates information in the form of resource papers, fact sheets, directories, newsletters, and website material to help people with disabilities reach their full potential through postsecondary education and training.

The HEATH Resource Center at the National Youth Transitions Center participates in national conferences, training sessions, and workshops; develops training modules; publishes resource papers, fact sheets, directories, and website information; and fosters a network of professionals in the arena of disability issues.

Our Publications

- HEATH Resource Papers are comprehensive reference guides that highlight current practices identified as effective in serving students with disabilities.
- HEATH Fact Sheets offer a concise overview of timely issues and topics related to postsecondary education and disability.
- HEATH Guidance and Career Counselor’s Toolkit has a website listing of more than 180 organizations that can be contacted for specific types of information and resources.

Our Website

HEATH’s website, located at www.heath.gwu.edu, is updated frequently and features clearinghouse publications, reviews of new resources, answers to frequently-asked questions, links to other related sites, distance-learning modules, and topical discussion forums. The site is also used to conduct consumer satisfaction surveys.
